

It comes as no surprise in this great free country of the USA that people are still trying to take away freedom of speech, freedom of competitive business, and regulate what we are allowed to hear as a free society, all in the interest of big business. Big business should not be able to keep their competition down with regulations. What ever happened to free trade? I believe that the FCC should be more concerned with protecting our freedoms, rather than listening to the NAB. The Wall Street scandals happened because too many SEC regulators were in a position for too long and had negotiated positions and friendships with the folks they needed to keep in check. As well, these checks and balances have been destroyed over the years with the FCC. The FCC needs to be removed or it needs to understand the 250,000,000 Americans it is supposed to represent, not big business. I demand the right to listen to XM Radio and hear the traffic/weather report at my leisure. If big business has a problem with that, then they need to be innovative and fix their problem like any other American business!
